SAPS to the rescue

Alison Petzer, Marina da Gama

On Saturday, when my car overheated on the Strandfontein coastal road, I was blessed to have police officers Kanon and Daniel come to my aid. Not only did they take the time to fetch water for my radiator but when it came to light that there was a hole in the connecting hose, they were willing and able to fix it and thus ensure my safe return home. My heartfelt thank you goes out to those two officers from Khayelitsha Precinct. May they be truly blessed for going the extra mile for my little grandson and I.

Well done, road works staff

I would like to commend the planners, engineers and workers of Martin East for carrying out a most difficult job on the road from Muizenberg to Clovelly and to keep the traffic moving. And what a good road, with more off-street parking.

A tribute to Aqeel Davids

Mike Oldham, Izivunguvungu Youth Band

The Izivunguvungu Youth Band remembered their youngest music student, Aqeel Davids, during their performance in Simon's Town on Heritage Day. Aqeel, who was killed in a shooting incident in Ocean View last month, was one of the Grade 4 pupils who had recently begun learning to play the trumpet as part of the music and sailing projects in the local schools.

There are several hundred pupils who have introductory lessons during their normal Grade 3 and 4 classes, and Aqeel was one of those who subsequently joined the afternoon band classes which are held in various schools in the local area, plus at the Orphan Foundation in Westlake.

Commander Mike Oldham, formerly director of the SA Navy Band, has led this music project for 21 years and is familiar with the security issues which affect the students, although they have not previously lost one of their own in such tragic circumstances. However, this only serves to motivate Mr Oldham in his efforts to reach even more students in these areas which continue to be affected by poverty, poor facilities, etc. All assistance to the Izivunguvungu projects will be welcomed.

For more information contact Mr Oldham via email on denmike@iafrica.com or call him at 082 445 6857.

New board elected at MCS

A new board was elected at the annual general meeting of the Muizenberg Historical Conservation Society, last month. All board members were elected unanimously and the new board is made up of Glenn Babb, Chris Taylor, Daniel Blaauw and Melodie Morris.

Mr Babb said the society members at the annual general meeting reacted positively to the robust and innovative way the society's leadership has driven the new calendar and programme.

Since the South African Heritage Resources Agency has signed a new lease with the society, Het Posthuys will soon be opened to visitors. Readers who are interested in acting as curators of the museums under the charge of the society (Rhodes Cottage and Het Posthuys) can call Mr Taylor at 082 908 3456.
